CHARLES F. MOORE, Secretary.

REPORT OF SUPERVISORS—1944-1945

As the war draws to a close men and women will be released from war plants and be ready to resume jobs in private industry. Many plants producing civilian products will be able to start manufacturing peacetime goods because they can once again secure an adequate labor supply.

Boards of Education, particularly in the smaller communities, face a different problem. Practically all of our teachers are women, a large percentage being married women. During the war our younger teachers have either married and left teaching, or have moved on to city positions. Patriotic married women, members of our communities, having families of their own, have come forward and offered their services. Without them our schools would have been without teachers. Other married women whose husbands have been inducted into the Armed Forces have also come forward. The strain of caring for a growing family and teaching is recognized. Gradually our married women with families find the burden too great and properly ask for relief. Husbands are returning home and are insisting that their wives resign. The reduced number of graduates of our Teacher Colleges are quickly absorbed by the larger towns and cities. The result is that peace will not bring an increased supply of teachers but will cause us to experience more difficulty in securing them.

The Town of Barkhamsted finds itself with a thoroughly remodeled two-room school in Riverton. At Pleasant Valley the school enrollment has forced use of an under-sized workroom as a regular classroom. The situation calls for a remedy at the earliest possible moment.

There are some public-spirited citizens who believe that the problem should be solved by constructing a modern, consolidated school to serve the children of the whole town. This building would contain not only classrooms, but a gymnasium-auditorium, a modern lunch room, clinic room, provision for kindergarten training and other facilities a modern school program requires. The building would also be adapted for community purposes and serve out-of-school youth. Certainly this group has many arguments to support its contention that a single consolidated school is the best solution to a problem which must soon be faced.

Many other small towns are in a similar position and the State Legislature recognized it as a state-wide problem. It passed a bill which grants as much as fifty thousand dollars of State-Aid for building purposes. In view of this generous state-aid it would seem desirable for the town to thoroughly explore the possibility of erecting a single, modern consolidated school to serve all Barkhamsted children.

Respectfully submitted,

F. J. PENLEY,
Superintendent of Rural Education,

MARGARET GUSTIN,

ANNUAL REPORT OF HEALTH OFFICER

September 11, 1945.

There were thirty cases of communicable diseases reported to the Town Health Officer by parents, attending physicians or school authorities. These included

2 pneumonia
5 whooping cough
2 German measles
21 measles

Total 30

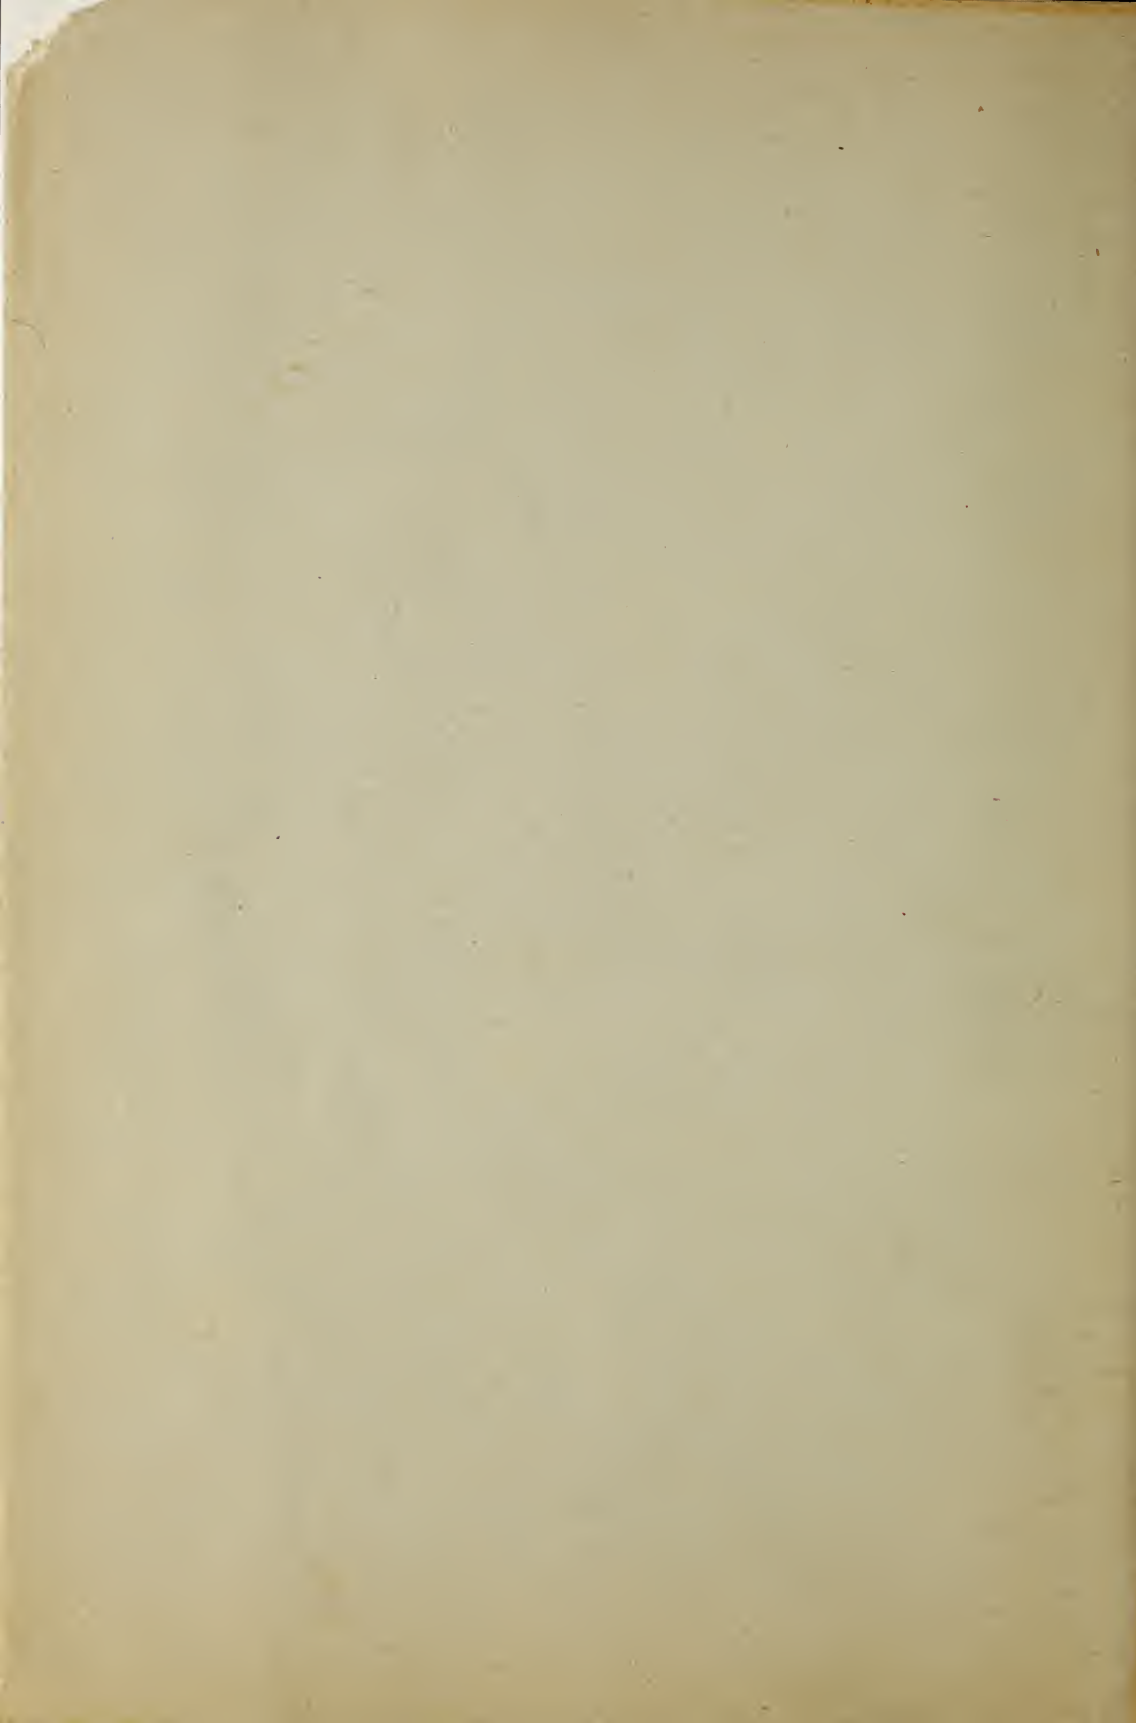

Activities of the Health Officer included inspection on the opening of the Riverton Inn to be used as a lodging house for girls working in tobacco lands. Various recommendations were made and conditions found generally satisfactory except for the water supply, regarding which the owner of the property has been informed future use will require a new water supply; eating places have been periodically examined and found generally satisfactory.

I wish to recommend seriously that the Town at Town Meeting consider the necessity of having a town dump for disposal of refuse, as centrally located as possible so that various parts of the town have ready access.
